Sean Creagh – Teacher

My name is Sean Creagh and I am the Social Science teacher for 7th and 8th grade. I am from Ireland originally and received my Associate Degree in Business and Marketing and a degree in Irish and European History. After moving to the U.S nine years ago I went to Northeastern Illinois University where I achieved an honors degree in History and was on the honors list for the College of Education.

As a former student of Catholic education both at Elementary and High School level I have a deep appreciation of faith based education. I have developed and practice a philosophy in education that instills the skills and confidence necessary for all students to be able to work as an independent learner and as a productive group member as well. I take great pride in all my students and aim to equip them with all the skills necessary to be successful both at High School and College level as well as life in general.
